1. Plans called for the Rumanian Army to be supplied with 3,800 tons of meat and 500 tons of bacon during the first quarter of 1951. Deliveries prior to 13 February 1951 were short of those targets because of a shortage of cattle and materials required for canning.
2. Prior to 16 February, Rumanians wishing to mail a letter to a foreign country had to report personally to a special window of the Bucharest post office and to produce the unsealed letter. A file was opened for each sender, listing the sender's and the addressee's names, the contents of the letter and the type of relationship between the sender and the addressee.
